ABOUT PROGRAM

Operating within a store's environment and managing the large quantities and value of stock is a competitive advantage in today's dynamic economy. Being able to identify different categories of stock and knowing how to best ensure the right material is in the right place at the time it is needed.

This program is designed to increase knowledge of the role of the store, the functions of the store personnel, how stock is managed and moved into through and out of the store either to an internal customer or an external customer.

During the past three decades, several supply chain certification bodies have been established; however, in the main most of the education offerings have concentrated on the theoretical aspects of the subject matter and fell short on the practical applications. These certification programs enhance the thought process of the professionals, but many certified professionals are unable to implement the theory into practice without some extra help along the way. So, after several years of research, VCARE Academy has taken the initiative and is launching a series of supply chain certification programs to fill the existing gap in the supply chain education.
